DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

Applicant is required to elect a specie of claim 1 by selecting a glycosyl specie for each of the first and second glycosyl residues and to select a glyceryl specie from among glycerol, glyceramide, lactyl and propylene glycol for the glyceryl component of the formula. Applicant is required to make the specie elections with the caution that the elected specie must be a specific compound disclosed per se or that it may be subject to a New Matter rejection.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Art Unit: 1651

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Claims 1-22 read on the generic formula of claim 1.

The following claim(s) are generic: claim 1.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: A “special technical feature” is defined by PCT Rule 13.2 as “those technical features that define a contribution which each of the claimed inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art.” In the instant case, as discussed below, a specie of the claimed inventions fail to make any contribution over the prior art. Because a specie fails to make any contribution over the prior art, the claims as filed fail to contain a single common special technical feature supporting a showing unity of invention.

Specifically, the article by Forrester et al. (Biochem. Biophys. Acta (1966), 25(1): 23-27) anticipates a specie of claim 1, O-alpha-D-glucosyl-(1-2)O-alpha-D-galactopyranosyl-(1-2) glycerol, See, e.g., page 25, glycoside 2a, of Forrester et al. disclosing the named specie. The STN Registry print out of this compound is included with this action. This specie anticipates claim 1 because the is drawn to the utilization of glycosyl-(1-2)-glycosyl-(1-2)-glyceryls. The compound named after the generic formula, (mannosyl-(1-2)glycosyl, is a specie of the generic formula. Because the claim fails to make a contribution over the prior art, it is clear that all claims as filed fail to provide special technical feature common to all claimed inventions. Because the claims as filed lack a common special technical feature, the claims lack unity.

Furthermore, the claims would lack unity even without the disclosure by Forrester et al. since each combination of glycosyl and glyceryl residues forms a specific compound having distinct chemical and physical properties compared to other species that fall within the generic formula. Hence, the species lack a common special technical feature.

Lack of a common special technical feature, and therefore lack of unity, is further demonstrated by the fact that the various processes claimed, including binding assays, diagnostic methods and therapeutic treatment methods, all have vastly different process steps, and therefore also lack unity.

It is noted that “use” claims are not statutory under U.S. patent law. Applicant is advised to amend the claims accordingly or such a rejection will be applied in the first action on the merits. At the present time, the claims are considered to be directed to composition claims.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
